CONTENTS

Class of 2017,

It is a distinct honor and pleasure to have served as your headmaster. Each year I reflect on the essence, spirit, and nature of the graduating class, and this class exemplifies strength and resilience.

As you prepare to move forward to the next chapter of your lives, it is my hope that you use the academic and life lessons learned throughout your high school journey as your guide. I challenge you to look within yourselves and make a commitment to practice self-love and to discover your purpose. We are all blessed with one life to live, and each day that passes records our story.

Therefore, consider each day a novel in progress. Understand that each word we speak, thought we think, decision we make, and step we take determines the end. So I ask you, what is your theme? What are the life lessons you want others to learn as a result of your experiences? What do you want the people of the world to read, know, and remember about you? What legacy will you leave behind? Remember, your life is your story, and I charge each and every one of you to be the sole author.

Class of 2017, position yourselves professionally by earning bachelors, masters, and doctoral degrees so that you can attain upstanding careers and participate in positive experiences that will change our communities and the world for the better. The time has come for you to pay it forward. In your transition, I want you to always keep these three things at the forefront of your minds:

1. Stay focused and committed to what you want the most out of life. Do not allow momentary pleasure or the challenge of hard work take you off of your path.

2. As you live from day to day, do not just accept things the way they are. Instead, be inspired to make them better. This includes your life circumstances.

3. You have the strength and resilience to achieve at exemplary levels. I quote James Baldwin in saying, "Know from whence you came. If you know whence you came, there are absolutely no limitations to where you can go." Always know and believe: You are the best because you are O'Bryant!

Sincerely,

Dr. Freeman-Wisdom
